MEMORANDUM

Census Pima Indians, Pima Agency

Fractional Year

July 1, 1925 to April 30, 1926

814.319
538.19
The census report of June 30, 1925 dropped 508 from the roll by death, 420 of which should have been dropped on former reports. The same census showed 182 additions by birth, 129 of which should have been given on former reports. That census showed a total enrollment of 4515 as of June 30, 1925.

The tentative census submitted at the close of April 1926 shows 339 additions since July 1, 1925, of which 91 are births of the current fiscal year to date, 96 are additions representing those dropped in error or not heretofore recorded and 182 are children born since allotment and not heretofore reported. The tentative census for that period shows, too, 421 reductions 87 of which are deaths of the current fiscal year to date and 334 represent deaths in former years not heretofore reported, and duplications heretofore undetected.

The accompanying list shows current births and deaths, July 1, 1925 to April 30, 1926 so far as we are able to ascertain. Tuberculosis is more prevalent than heretofore reported and any epidemic as measles, whooping cough, etc., arouse their predisposition to the disease.

Close study of the census is additional proof, too, of the excessive mortality among Indians from influenza generally prevalent in 1918 and 1919 - a mortality quite forgotten save when research brings new light on the toll of the Indian people.

Irrespective of the apparently excessive mortality of the past decade there has been consistent gain in numbers. Hiram C. Dodge after careful count in 1876 gave the number of Pimas and Maricopas on the reserve at 4,326. The above figures based on a census of April 30, 1926, gives their number at 4,463, or a gain of 137 in the half century - 27 to the decade.
